

Problem Set 4

Caleb Reid

February 24, 2026

I would be interested in scraping data from the 2026 NFL Combine. Starting on Tuesday, February 24, hundreds of college athletes will be showcasing their ability in front of the entire NFL. I would like to see which athletes perform the best across the different test metrics. I think it would be fun to make this into a project to predict who is going to be drafted based on their performance in the NFL Combine.

Some difficulties obtaining this data would be getting the permission from the NFL. I doubt the NFL just freely gives out the Combine data to everyone, so I would probably have to seek permission. There is a good chance they would give me access because I am a sports data analytics graduate student, and I have been given access to NFL data in the past for analytics competitions.